

If Flin Flin, Why Not Peace River?

THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT is backing the National Railways to build a railway 80 miles long to enable the Whitney interests of New York to develop the Flin Flin copper deposits in northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

This railway will cost $4,000,000. It will lead to the creation of a great industrial enterprise, perhaps supporting a mining town of 5,000 or 10,000 people.

There has been no opposition in any quarter to the investment of this amount of public money in order to make that development possible. It is accepted by the Canadian people generally to be good business to build the railway in order to make possible the exploitation of the mineral wealth buried in the Flin Flin rocks, and the incidental creation of an industrial community in what is now a wilderness.

The end justifies the means. Canada will be richer, the opportunities of life broader, the farming interests of Manitoba stimulated, trade expanded, by reason of the new wealth that will be brought into existence and the new community that will spring into being.

If the expenditure of this $4,000,000 is warranted, to bring about the development of a comparatively small area of mineralized rocks, the expenditure of a much larger sum would be equally warranted to bring about the settlement and development of the great unoccupied farming region that is known as the Peace River country.

If a mining community of 10,000 people comes into existence in the Flin Flin district, the country will have received good value for its investment. But there is room in the Peace River district for a farming population of 300,000 people.

If the Flin Flin mines turn out to $100,000,000 worth of copper in the next ten years the construction of that 80 miles of railway will have been abundantly justified. But the Peace River district is capable of producing $100,000,000 worth of wheat every year.

The Flin Flin mineral deposit will come day by exhausted. But the fertility of the Peace River district will last to the end of time.

$4,000,000 would network the Peace River district with a network of branch lines equal to one-quarter or one-third the total mileage of the E. D. and B. C. system; and would permit the production there of 50,000,000 bushels of wheat a year, with other farm products in proportion.

Three or four times that sum would give the people in Peace River a direct railway outlet connection to the ports on the Pacific coast.

If it is good business for Canada—and it is—to spend $4,000,000 to develop the Flin Flin copper deposit, it should be equally good business for Canada to spend four or five or ten times that amount to provide the Peace River country with a complete system of internal transportation facilities and a direct railway connection to the coast.

The Dominion Government was bound by no public promise to facilitate the development of the Flin Flin deposit. That Government is bound by a very definite pledge, publicly given and repeated, to make the Peace River country the "spearshead" of its immigration policy—something which cannot be done, and would be a crime if it were done, without railway construction in keeping with the requirements of the district.

The people of Peace River, and the people of Alberta, have every right to expect that the Dominion will back the development of the Peace River region as it is backing the development of the Flin Flin area. With the latter undertaking they have to wait to find. On the contrary, they see in that an evidence of foresight, confidence and enterprise on the part of the national Government. What they ask, and what they are entitled to expect, is that the same measure of foresight, confidence and enterprise will be shown toward the opening up of the Peace River country.

Premier Brownlee's offer and invitation, Wednesday, to the leaders of the Liberal, Conservative, and Labor parties to join him in trying to reach a unanimous decision on Alberta's railway problem, so that this province can show a united front to Ottawa and the two transcontinental railways, is one that should be accepted at once. The WEST-TIME PROVINCES forgot party politics in their problems and GAINED EVERYTHING THROUGH THE DUNCAN REPORT. MANITOBA AND SASKATCHEWAN dropped politics and obtained THE HUDSON'S BAY RAILWAY and the FLIN FLIN RAILWAY. BRITISH COLUMBIA last season passed a unanimous resolution demanding the return to them of the railway lands in B. C. amounting to millions of acres, and are GETTING THEM AT THIS SESSION OF THE FEDERAL PARLIAMENT.

ALBERTA, BY PRESENTING A UNANIMOUS DEMAND, SHOULD GET BETTER TERMS FOR THE E. D. & B. C. AND FIVE A. & G. W. RAILWAYS.

The Federal Government is it duly bound to carry out the pledges made by the present Prime Minister in this city two years ago.

LET'S GET ACTION RIGHT NOW!

Board Finds All Departments Except Isolation Too Small

Having gone fully into the need of the Royal Alexandra Hospital for increased accommodation, the Board of that institution will, through a special committee, present its case to the City Council on Friday evening, Feb. 10.

It was at a meeting Wednesday evening, when the report presented by the building and lands committee and the special sub-committee was received.

Brownlee Boosts Coal Roads Are Costly Criticism Welcome

Railway Offer Poor

By W. A. DE GRAYES

A. A. McMillan, K.C., and his colleagues, the Conservative benches, were congratulatory themselves on getting a report on Wednesday evening, and the most optimistic of them even predicted that before the end of the session the light in the dome which shows whether the legislators are working overtime, will be a deep shade of conservative blue. It all came about when Premier Brownlee, in one of the best efforts ever heard in the hall, declared himself wholly and explicitly in favor of a National Coal policy as outlined by the Conservative leader. As the latter had advocated the same policy at the Winnipeg convention, where it was accepted as one of the very party's platforms, the rank and file of the peerless leader's party argued that its acceptance by the premier indicated a change of heart on the part of the government leader. But they're not making any bet on it, Mr. Speaker.

Alberta has a stable investment in its road system. Premier Brownlee gave figures on Wednesday evening, when he said that the province has spent some $2,000,000 on its roads, and that of which was on capital account, $1,600,000 on interest account. Of this amount, over $1,000,000 was on interest account.

Production Is Twenty-Six Million Bushels More Than Ever

With every section of the province enjoying increased production, Alberta as a whole yielded in 1924 a total of 26,000,000 bushels of wheat more than in any previous year, although in three previous years the yield per acre has been slightly higher, according to the annual report of the department of agriculture, tabled in the legislature Thursday afternoon, by the minister, Hon. Geo. H. Ferguson.

The 1925 crop approximated 26,000,000 bushels, and the value of all agricultural products during the year was $129,142,152, which was 25 times the value of the 1904 production.

Why Character Tests Before Marriage Would Fail to Reveal Fitness as Husbands and Wives—How to Cure a Jazz-Mad Wife

Dear Miss Dix—There are many of the State capital certificates from a man and woman before they are permitted to marry, would it not be an excellent law if, in addition, a man and a woman had to undergo a character test before they were granted a license to wed? READERS.

Answer: It would certainly be much to the satisfaction of marriage if men and women could be forewarned of the character of the life partner they were getting, but I am afraid the law could never furnish them with this important information. For it is one of the conditions of matrimony that often the best men and women make the worst husbands and wives and contrariwise among men and women who are short on mind, reason make the best husbands and wives.

You often hear people wonder who wives bring to drunken, good-for-nothing husbands, and why men put up with heavily extravagant, lawless wives, and the answer is that these men and women had nothing to commend them to the public had more quality than others who so much to them to whom they were married that they were willing to forgive all else.

And on the other hand, it is often cynically pointed out with what fortune some wife has borne the loss of her husband who was a prominent citizen and an example to the community, for while people wonder why some man marries a wife who is such a noble woman, and only to find out later that she was a fortune teller, and that she was a fortune teller.

So no test that the law could make that would give a woman's character would have any bearing upon their eligibility as husbands and wives. They might grade a hundred per cent perfect, and yet make those who married them miserable.

A man might be as pure as a church spire, yet cold as ice to his wife. He might be highly religious, and a tightwad out of whom she would have to escape every moment. He might be as dry as the Vinedale cat, yet have a temper that would keep her cowering in fear of him. He might be a millionaire and a great success in business, yet have a wife who would be to him as a cat to a mouse.

A woman might be pure as a church spire and yet have a heart as hard as a rock. She might be intelligent, yet one of the bores of the town who would bore you to death. She might be a fine housekeeper, yet have a temper that would keep her cowering in fear of him. He might be a millionaire and a great success in business, yet have a wife who would be to him as a cat to a mouse.

The truth is it is not the standardized virtue that make for happiness in marriage. It is the temper and the temperament of the individual that counts, and unfortunately there seems to be no way of getting any accurate line upon those until after marriage, and then the knowledge comes too late to do you any good.

If there was any way in which a wife could find out before marriage if a man was sincere, if he was good-natured, if he was tolerant, if he was tender and sympathetic, it would be a great thing for her.

But there is no way for her to get this sort of a character test, because before marriage some man always presents on his sweetest, and considers her pleasure before his own. He is so anxious to please her that he will do anything she asks him to do.

It would be equally valuable for the man to get a line on a wife before marriage and find out if she was sweet-tempered and broad-minded, and a good sport who would be willing to make the best of things as they came.

But he is equally powerless to find out anything about her real character, because before marriage every girl puts her best foot foremost and is so anxious to please him that she will do anything he asks her to do. So there you are.

And while a man and woman can find out about each other's blood tests, and their general standing for integrity in the community, in which they cannot find out anything about each other's temperaments, which is the really important thing for them to know, and that is one of the things that make marriage a risky business.

Answer: It would be foolish to break up your home and your business connections, because you can't move away from temptations. You must get up with you today that you can get away from a jazz orchestra, and if your wife is jazz-mad, she could always find somebody to "tend a measure with her."

The only thing you can do to reason with her and try to make her see what a foolish thing she is doing, and how it affects her in the long run. Tell her that you think she has little self-control for treating you. Tell her that you think she has little self-control for treating you. Tell her that you think she has little self-control for treating you.

Ask her if she thinks she is being a good sport, and playing the game smartly with you, when she knows in her heart and strength is doing herself making a comfortable home, and when she comes home too tired and exhausted to do anything but throw herself on the bed and sleep. It will not take much of such night life to ruin her health and make her a nervous wreck. It is to be an invalid, and suffering all an expense to him.

Finally, ask her if she has control the rest that she will have to pay for her jazz parties. Tell her that she has to pay for her jazz parties. Tell her that she has to pay for her jazz parties. Tell her that she has to pay for her jazz parties.

I commend your strength of character in refusing to let your wife drag you around at her heels to her dancing orgies. She must get up with you at 4 o'clock in the morning and bring a clear mind to her work. He is bound to be dull-witted for lack of sleep and lack of rest, and in no way able to compete with the men who have had their eight hours of rest.

But perhaps the solution of your problem is a baby. If your wife had to work the whole night, it might take the place of jazz.

BEAUTY
How and Why

BY ANN ALAISE
To be attractive is not only necessary that your hands should conform to any type in fashion, but also that the attractive hand which we see so often in the world of the old masters (in that day only those who could afford to have their portraits painted) and so on in the world of the modern artist. When some one tells us that we have such characteristic in our hands we are immediately flattered. We like to think that we show our true mood or our artistic feelings. But the rather broad, square fingered hand of the capable man or woman, or the delicate hand of the surgeon, or the close-misted characteristics of the business man's hand are all good in their own different ways. But if the hand is poorly cared for and unclean, what is the greater way for it to be attractive?

Cleanliness is the first step to beauty. For this purpose, use a good toilet soap, plenty of hot water and create an habit to always the grime and dirt not removed by the usual soap and water method.

After the hands are washed, the skin should be rubbed with the cream until it is always dry. This is especially so in the case of the skin of the chemist, to all us here. Sometimes the hands are means will be of great assistance. These aids will discuss in detail later.

FLALED CUTS
Tight hair tend to have flared ends. In this spring, a flared haircut gives a trimmer effect with soft front and flaring side bangs.

When a man and his wife, accompanied by a grown son and daughter, travel in a large city, and engage rooms at a leading hotel, what is the greater way for them to register? Should the head of the family register for all, thus Mr. Rufus McIlenna, wife, son and daughter, or are the names entered separately?

It is not good form for a man to register, "and wife" or "and wife and daughter" after his own name. That is a too-poor-society. Each person is a separate entity. Rufus, Jr., may register, "Mr. and Mrs. Rufus McIlenna," or he may sign his own name, "Rufus McIlenna" (without the Jr.) and his wife may register her social name, "Mrs. Rufus McIlenna."

Should hotelists upon separate cards, "Miss Carmen McIlenna" and "Mrs. Rufus McIlenna," and let the guests sign their names on a given date.

PILOT SHOTTEN ONE-DAY BOSS

Acted as Sunday Manager for Cardinals Under Branch Rickey

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—The appointment of Earl Sheely as manager of the Phillies to succeed "Ducky" Adams, results in the new pilot gaining his first experience in directing the players of a big league club as single manager of the St. Louis Browns.

Shoten, in his day a great out-fielder, played with the St. Louis Browns under Branch Rickey's management. The Browns' religious captain kept him away from the ball park on Sunday for several seasons as he did not want to play on his day of rest.

Two years at the head of the revenue club of the International Association, Shoten, who has been in the league for 15 years, brought the club to second from seventh in that time.

GOOD TIMES IN THE WHITE SOX CAMP

EARL SHEELY, GREAT FIRST SACKER, PASSES TO MINORS

Bad Job of Bone-setting Away Back in 1912 Was Only Reason For Release From White Sox—Was Grand Player

By BILL EVANS
Exclusive to Bulletin

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Earl Sheely, seven years first baseman for the Chicago White Sox, has been sent to the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast League. For so doing, Chicago, it is understood, gets the option on that club as to selection of players at the close of the season.

That brief paragraph, as carried by the wires the other day, barely tells the tale of the passing of a former big league star to the minors. Fate was kind to Earl Sheely, who was released from the White Sox in 1912, his first year in professional baseball. An unkind act of fate that year had been a terrific handicap ever since, yet Sheely carried on to great success.

BROKEN ANKLE HANDICAPPED HIM
While with Vancouver during the season of 1912, Sheely suffered a broken ankle. Whoever had charge of the injury certainly bungled the job, for Sheely's leg, as the ankle assumed an almost preternatural life.

Naturally such a bad job of bone-setting prevented free action at the ankle and slowed Sheely up badly. This was far more trouble on the name than it was in the field, where his great height—six feet four inches—helped cover up the defect as to covering ground.

Sheely first came into National prominence at Salt Lake in the Chicago league back in 1916. Dan White took a chance. He had been with that club ever since. Dan White was a youngster, Bud Clancy was given the preference at first base, which marked the beginning of the end for Sheely as a first baseman.

Without An Equal
Over 22 years have been watching closely the star first baseman of the majors. I have seen some wonders in Hal Chase, George Stinner, McGuire, Frank Chance and others of that ilk, but none equal to making a man out of the glove hand.

At this time, I never saw a first baseman who could compare with Sheely in making a ball with the glove hand. The ball with the glove hand.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE - - By Ahern

HEY! WAIT A MINUTE! YOU'RE PUSHING ME AROUND THIS WAY! I WANT TO GO TO THE MOVIE OR TO THE SICK! YOU'RE DISLOCATING MY ANKLE! I HEARD IT CRACK!

G'WAN I, YOU BIG BALD FACED FELLOW! SHE'S IN THERE SEWING, I ASK HER OUT TO A MOVIE OR A WALK! YOU MAKE ME SICK! MORE NERVE THAN A PORCELAIN TOOTH!

I'VE HEARD OF 'EM FALLING IN LOVE, BUT THIS IS THE FIRST TIME I'VE SEEN ANYBODY BEING PUSHED IN IT!

I DON'T THINK CLIPD WILL EVER GET AS CLOSE TO SAKES' HEART AS HIS UNDERSHIRT!

I'VE HEARD OF 'EM FALLING IN LOVE, BUT THIS IS THE FIRST TIME I'VE SEEN ANYBODY BEING PUSHED IN IT!
